

What Is The Eleven Year Report?

This report is created each year by the CARDD Office (Center for Analytics Research and Development and Data) in the national office from the data that is submitted from local congregations and conferences through the annual yearbook process. That data is then combined to create the report that reflects the “state of the Conference” by the numbers. The data is only as accurate as the information provided by congregations and completing Yearbook information is too often at the bottom of the list for many. While this is understandable it makes it challenging to really know how many members a Conference has; while that may not seem important the Yearbook data that a church submits is also used by pastors when they are in the search process and if a church hasn’t updated their information in many years, the search process may be negatively impacted as well as the Eleven Year Report.

So, a plug for the Yearbook process and for contributing accurate information and using the data available to inform decisions about ministry. CARDD is supported by your OCWM dollars and happy to be of assistance.
